Turner Admits Workers Outpace Jobs

By PAUL JACKSON Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister John Turner admitted in the House of Commons Wednesday that Canada's rapidly growing labor force will likely out-distance the number of new jobs created over the next two or three years.

Turner made the statement after Progressive Conserva-tive Opposition leader Robert Stanfield claimed that new job creation in 1972 was one-third or 114,000 jobs below predictions the finance minister made in his May 8 budget.

The Conservative leader said while Turner had claimed a minimum 334,000 new jobs would be created in 1972, equal to the 1971 figure, Statistics Canada reports showed only 220,000 new jobs

Stanfield wondered why the Stanfeld wondered why the Liberal government hadn't acted to make sure its prom-jse was fulfilled. The finance minister tended to ignore Stanfield's actual question and simply said that job creation this year has

"very encouraging." wever, he said despite this, new job creation has been increasing labor force "which we have to expect for the next two or three years."

The minister indicated that measures in his new budget, due Feb. 19th, would help to stimulate employment

Stanfield suggested that the finance minister had fallen down on another target. He said Turner had predicted an economic growth rate of between six and 6.5 per cent over the year yet indica-tions are the rate will turn out

The finance minister told the Commons that Stanfield could not know what the actu-al figures will be since statistics have yet to come in.

Even after that, Turner reminded the Conservative leader, the figures would be subject to revision.

City Ultimatum Breaks Strike

DURBAN, South Africa bound all week, ended their stoppage and the municipal striking municipal workers, most of them Zulu laborers, began trickling back to their jobs today under the threat of a city ultimatum to be working by Friday or be fired.

The strike, which had affected more than 100 concerns in the Durban area, became violent Wednesday when po-lice fired tear gas to disperse a crowd of about 200 blacks in a nearby industrial area. The workers were protesting low wages and demanding immediate increases.

Another airlift of police units from Pretoria arrived in Durban today to prevent any further violence.

"We are geared for anything that might erupt and we will no longer tolerate any intimidation of those who are prepared to work," said Durstan's rolling commissioner.

tenance staffs is over, and the public can only wonder why it took 26 days to achieve the settlement that has now been agreed to by both sides. The final alterations which resolved the points that were preventing agreement were not of a breath-taking nature, and the conclusion must be that the serious impediments which were put in the way of many of the school students were not really necessary. Could this agreement not have been reached with the staffs still

The settlement raises the matter of governmental intervention. It is clear, of course, that governments move into the picture only when negotiations have whittled down the contentious items. They thus get credit for a settlement which required a relatively small equally clear that the students would not be back in warm, clean classrooms today if the Labor Minister had not called the disputants in and effected agreement. The Tuesday contract was very little different from that which was rejected Monday.

True, the government carries weight when it urges a settlement. Union leaders may be loath to invite the possibility of adverse legislation by insisting on points that are not crucial. And school boards which agree to shoulder higher costs may reasonably look to the government to help provide the larger funds which it has recommended.

But it all seems very cumbersome, antiquated and slow, with eventual results not far from what could have been achieved much earlier, and without the personal and social losses involved in a protracted work stoppage.

Does one answer lie in earlier governmental intervention, or strict time limits imposed by law, or a system of courts working on a schedule which could substitute for government ministers? The readiness of many parents to pitch in to clean classrooms so that their children would not lose valuable time should be noted by both government and labor. It is not an acceptable alternative to proper functioning of the schools, but it does indicate a growing public impatience with the delays and manoeuvres which many labor-management negotiations adopt. The whole procedure is not much beyond the practice of burning a house down to produce roast pork. But they long ago made an improvement on that.

Brakes on Supersonic Advance

The decisions of Pan American of their time and that practical World Airways and Trans World Airlines to drop their options to purchase seven and six Concordes respectively marks just one more setback for the Anglo-French supersonic aircraft. The companies explained their action in simple terms: they doubted their ability to make money with the 1,350 miles-per-hour aircraft that cost $50 millions apiece.

Last fall, United Airlines became the first to cancel Concorde purchase options and in Canada interest in the supersonic passenger transport has been in limbo since the American SST program went into cold storage. The commercial lines on this continent, it appears, feel that the supersonics are ahead

Present projections in Canada suggest the bulk of business is swinging, and will continue to swing, toward flights which cost less, though they may take a little longer. With Vancouver-to-London flights now taking less than nine hours, the economical traveller finds no great inducement to get there in four hours at a higher

Notwithstanding the French expert's belief that a fare 10 per cent lower than that for first class jumbo-jet travel is possible, potential buyers on this continent are surrendering their options, and the development is promoting a new philosophy. It assumes that the tide of technological change has begun to slacken and is no longer rushing mankind off its feet.

Fair Dealing or Fraud?

OTTAWA - In the case of the Nishga Indians, the courts were not called upon to decide on compensation; merely to affirm that aboriginal title had not been extinguished.

As plainly stated in the Hall opinion, however, such a declaration would open the question of compensation for future determination if and when there were proceedings to dispossess the people. For this reason, no doubt, Mr. Justice Jud-son, after concluding that title had been extinguished, went on to make an argument that such claims are not com-

Here there is basic disagreement among the judges. In the Judson opin very great weight is accorded two U.S. Supreme Court decisions of 1951 and 1955 (the second Tillamooks and Tee-Hit-Ton cases) which seem to indicate that rights to compensation must be based on legislation and cannot be argued on the constitutional right to recovery for the taking of private property.

Two Points Important

In Canada importance has always been attached to U.S. judgments. The reason is that American jurisprudence and practice is rooted in pre-revolutionary doctrine. But American judgments are not necessarily decisive here. U.S. courts are said to operate in a rather more political atmosphere than our own; in second Tillamooks, it is alleged that the judges drew back because they appeared to be on a course which might lead to expenditures of billions in back interest payments. However this may be, there are two points which ought not to be lost to sight.

The first is that aberrations occur, even in judgments of the highest courts. It must be asked whether these ments are in the main stream of judgments and general practice over two at much greater length in the opinion of Mr. Justice Hall than in the opposing opinion of Mr. Justice Judson.

The second is that account must be taken of an even broader stream for the same root doctrine has been applied in countries such as New Zealand, India and Nigeria, with cases often leading to Privy Council decisions. It need not follow that the "last word" (especially a diverging word) from the U.S. Supreme Court is all-important for us since the United States does have institutions and problems peculiar to itself and distinct from those of countries in the parliamentary tradition. There is surely something strange in the view that Canadian dec sions must depend on interpretations of the Fifth Amendment to the constitution of the United States.

Occupants' Rights

In the beginning European nations, defending their rights against national rivals, developed the doctrine that sovereignty flowed from discovery. Neverthe less, wrote Chief Justice Marshall in 1823 (Johnson vs. McIntosh) the original in habitants "were admitted to be the right ful occupants of the soil with a legal as well as just claim to retain posses In a later reference to the doctrine of discovery (Worcester vs. Georgia 1832), he added: "It gave the exclusive right to purchase but did not found that right on a denial of the right of the possessor to sell."

The traditional method of extinguishing title — by negotiation and treaty — reflected these views. In Canada the tradition was even stronger for our history is far less marred by violent deviations from well-established policy.

In two other cases involving non treaty land, (Cramer 1922 and Santa Fe Pacific 1941), the U.S. court enunciated this important principle: "Nor is it true that a tribal claim to any particular lands must be based upon a treaty, statute or other formal government as And as late as 1946 before, as some allege, cold feet set in, the Supreme Court in the first Tillamooks case declared flatly that "the Indians have a cause of action for compensation arising out of an involuntary taking of lands held by original Indian title."

U.S. authorities were quoted in an inportant Canadian case, The Queen vs. St. Catherines Milling and Lumber. On the basic issue; whether title had passed to Canada or Ontario; the judges divided, a majority favoring Ontario. They agreed, however, in recognizing an Indian fructuary title to unsurrendered loans. 'This title", wrote Judge Strong, though not perhaps susceptible of any accurate legal definition in exact legal terms, was one which nevertheless sufficed to protect the Indians in the absoand noted the admission of Judge Tysoe in British Columbia: "It is true, as the appellants have submitted, that nowhere lute use and enjoyment of their lands. can one find express words extinguishing Indian title. If Mr. Judson is correct in his opincontinue until formally extinguished is supported by a very recent U.S. judgment (Lipan Apache tribe, 1967). "In the absence of a 'clear and plain' indication in the public records that the sovereign intended to extinguish all of the claimants' rights in their property, aboriginal title continues." From this Mr. Justice

Hall concludes that the onus is not on the part of the sovereign, to extinguish it.

The presumption that native rights ion, based at least partly on the importance of two recent U.S. judgments, we have reached a situation which may seem incomprehensible to laymen. For on the one hand, aboriginal title does not depend on treaty, executive order or legislative enactment as affirmed in the Cramer, Santa Fe and other cases. Yet those claiming such a title are denied hope unless there is a legislative enactment. What a can of worms!

JUDGE TYSOE . no express words

whilst at the same time they were incapacitated from taking any valid alienation otherwise than to the Crown it-

Lord Sumner (in re Southern Rhodesia 1919) commented on the difficulty of estimating the rights of aboriginal tribes, some having such primitive social organizations that it was difficult to reconcile their usages, their conceptions or rights and duties, with the legal ideas of civilized society. "On the other hand", he affirmed, "there are indigenous peoples whose legal conceptions, though dif-ferently developed, are hardly less precise than our own. When once they have been studied and understood, they are no less enforceable than rights arising under English law."

Viscount Haldane in a Nigerian case (Amodu Tijani 1921) compressed two points into a key senterice of his judgement. "The original native right was a communal right, and it must be presumed to have continued to exist unless the contrary is established by the context or circumstances

Settled People

But there may be more than communal right in the Nishga case. Mr. Justice Hall insists that the B.C. appeal court judge ignored the evidence in finding that the Mainland Indians "were undoubtedly at the time of settlement a very primitive people with few of the institutions of civilized society, and none at all of our notions of private property. Nishgas were not nomadic but settled Indians: the reports of Captain Cook support the view stated by Wilson Duff, anthropologist who testified at length that they had developed their culture "to higher peaks in many respect than in any other part of the continent north of Mexico.'

Moreover the evidence, as carefully analyzed in the Hall opinion, shows that the concept of ownership was more than Within the Nishga area, kin groups claimed exclusive rights and the system of succession to property based

Fair Dealing

Without minimizing the importance of the cases cited in both opinions, common sense would suggest that something is also to be deduced from the practice. A great deal of Canadian history reflects the view of Mr. Justice Idington that the treaties entered into "by those responsible for the honor of the Crown" carried forward "a line of policy begotten of prudence, humanity and justice," originting in the great proclamation of 1963. Fair dealing, in other words.

Mr. Justice Hall puts the common sense argument this way. "Surely the Canadian treaties, made with much soinity on behalf of the Crown, were intended to extinguish the Indian title. What other purpose did they serve? If they were not intended to extinguish the Indian right, they were a gross fraud and that is not to be assumed.

It would follow that title has not been extinguished where there has been no treaty or comparable act.

But how are we to regard so much of our history? Was it a record of fair dealing or was it gross fraud? As matters have been left by the Supreme Court and by current government policy, that is very much an open question.

Dollars and Sense Problem

NEW YORK - The biggest problem facing the United States and Europe is a matter of dollars and sense. There are too many of the former and there is too little of the latter on one or another side of the Atlantic, depending on the observer's geographical stance. But adjust ments on both trade and monetary matters must be made if NATO is to hold together in this newly flexible multipolar

Although the alliance partners are not doing enough to insure their military defence, nobody expects any major war threats during the predictable future. The pattern of international relationship has changed; the menace of icebound blocks has seemingly vanished. Business and economic rivalries are replacing rivalries in armaments and ideology, even if that switch of emphasis cannot be considered necessarily permanent.

And during this loosening up, when various Communist systems are clearly contesting each other, various capitalist nations are competing for market. This is of immediate concern to policy makers in Washington and Europe.

No Easy Task

If President Nixon proceeds with his intention to reach accommodation between the enormous American economy and an increasingly consolidated European economy, it is inevitable that compromises must be negotiated on commercial and currency relationships. This is no easy task.

Nixon has been quietly working on monetary problems since 1970. The first steps, arranged in 1971; were short-lived in their effect. Likewise, trade repercussions of the Common Market's enlargemust be adjusted to stabilize NATO's economic - and political - bal-

Europe is acutely aware that U.S. investments there have grown enormously during recent years. American megacorporations saw the immense potential value of the Common Market to harddriving, well-organized concerns. With a few outstanding exceptions, the only with U.S. headquarters and top manage ment. More than a decade ago General de Gaulle complained that U.S. inflation was financing a major grab of continental industries.

Today, with nine countries including Britain in the market, American investments in that area amount to a book value of more than $20 billion. Direct investment from European Community members in the United States is but a fraction of this figure.

U.S. law does not permit foreign investment in various categories of industries and there is also private administrative resistance to takeovers in merous firms. But, even more impor tant, the awesome size of the American economy and high costs of admission disurage funds from abroad.

This imbalance has been further complicated by the rise of multinational corporations of which a major proportion are American-based. West German Prof.

Karl Kaiser, who will shortly publish a book on this intricate subject, forecasts that such international production is like ly to rise from 22 per cent of the total production in the non-Communist world to 50 per cent by 1990.

Coincidentally an increasingly grave monetary crisis threatens to twist the economic system. The currency relationships established at Bretton Woods when World War II was ending have

Gold production - even if it were to be accelerated by increasing its price is wholly inadequate to finance the trade boom. This forces the world to depend increasingly on some other standard than gold, and so far liquidity has been maintained principally by an expanding deficit in the U.S. balance of payments The dollar can no longer carry the burden it had perforce assumed as a re-

Allotment Problem

Nations that depend heavily on foreign trade have come to rely increastificial devices like Special Drawing Rights which now are assuming a permanent role in international banking. The question is how to allot respective responsibilities to gold, the dollar and supporting contrivances such as S.D.R.s.

Moreover, once this is accomplished, it will be necessary for Marxist countries, for example Russia and China which are entering international markets, to find means of financing their foreign purchases. There is not yet any real value to the ruble. Europe wonders which path Nixon will choose. There was grumbling in 1971 when, behind the hard symbol of Treasury Secretary Connally, the President played a tough game with his partners But now that the Common Market has been enlarged, the next round of negotiations may require greater delicacy and a more generous spirit of give and take Presumably one major goal of Prime Minister Heath's Washington visit was to assess the prospects.

Socreds Tap Quebec People Power

Yvon Dupuis, left, in moment of triumph

MONTREAL — It was a packed convention in the crud-

Two-dollar membership cards were all that almost 6,000 people required to enter the convention and vote for a new leader of the Social Credit Party of Quebec last week-

But the convention was also packed with power — the kind of people power that the other parties only talk about.

They came to Quebec in hundreds of cars and buses from the farms and villages of Gaspe, Beauce and the Eastern Townships — from of Gaspe, Beauce and the Eastern Townships — from the mining and mill towns of northern Quebec — and this time, for the first time, in large numbers from the workers' districts in the east end of Montreal. They filled a pockey arens and overflowed hockey arena and overflowed into an exhibition hall, at least 8,000 of them in all.

In the gloomy exhibition hall, where dark masses of people voted and watched a huge television image of the convention projected through the tobacco smoke, the feeling of raw political energy was as but and thick as the atmohot and thick as the atmo-that there was enough power here to affect the future of governments in Quebec, in Ottawa, and perhaps even the future of Canada. One thing was taken for granted — that all political equations in the next little while will have to include this force.

Where did it originate? Some of the old farmers at Some of the old farmers at the convention could recall 40 years of Social Credit in Quebec. But most of that history belongs in the Old Testament of the Movement, when its members were white berets and believed that Social Credit was conceived overseas in the mind of Major Douglas, born in the election of William Aberhart in Alberta, and protected in Quebec by the Virgin Mary.

In 1970, against Caouette's advice, another car dealer from his own town of Rouyn-Noranda took the party into Quebec politics only a few weeks before, a provincial election. Camil Samson won 12 per cent of the vote and 12 of the 108 seats in Quebec's national assembly

Samson was deposed as lead-er. There has been enough bitterness and confused wrangling about the leadership since then to have destroyed a dozen ordinary parties. But Social Credit has thrived on rural Quebecers supported the party. Most of them didn't know or care about the lead-ership struggle.

Anybody who wanted to leave the colony would have to voluntarily undergo treat-ment and give up the habit. Otherwise, they would have to remain.

anything morally wrong with quarantining somebody with smallpox, why should we see tining somebody with a mon-key on his back?

Such a program would in-corporate some of the strong features of the British system of handing out free heroin to addicts while avoiding the problem of having the addicts circulating with non-addicts, thereby turning others on.

Ocean Falls is going to be closed down March 29. Pre-sumably the place will be de-molished, since it is too isolated for the houses to be shipped

New Dodge Electronic Ignition System. It makes your life a little simpler.

The first question you're going to ask is, what is it?

The second. How is it going to simplify my life?

O.K., to answer the first part. In any conventional ignition system the mechanical breaker points may be the cause of some problems. Knowing this, Chrysler engineers developed a solid-state electronic system (all 6 & 8 cyl. engines) that eliminates the need for breaker points and condenser, and their resulting maintenance headaches.

That essentially, is what the new system is.

Now for what it can do for your car and your wallet.

For starters your car is going to start better at mileage levels when mechanical systems normally start to deteriorate.

And because engine misfiring at highway speeds is virtually eliminated exhaust emissions are greatly reduced.

What will it mean to your pocketbook? Because there are no points to wear out, no condenser to replace, the cost of tune-ups drops considerably.

The new electronic ignition system is just one of the many standard features built into Dodge.

New front disc brakes, (except Dart with 6 cylinder engines), unibody construction, torsion-bar suspension (except Colt) and new emission control systems are among the impressive list.

Innovative engineering plus extra care in every detail, make us believe your new Dodge is the best Dodge we've ever built.

Extra Care in Engineering... it makes the difference.

cHicago (AP) — Old crop soybean futures advanced the daily limit of 10 cents a bush-el for the sixth successive day on the Board of Trade Thurs-day but new crop futures were down more than seven cents.

Wheat futures declined the limit of 10 cents for the third straight day while corn futures prices were mixed along with oats.

Soybean meal, down the $5 limit early in the session, closed on a mixed tone. Soybean oil gained some 20 points.

The buying of nearby soybean futures again reflected concern in the trade that current stocks of soybeans may be inadequate to meet domes-

Triple In Decade WASHINGTON (Reuter) —
The United States more than tripled its sales of weapons to other countries in the last decade, the U.S. arms control and disarmament agency asid Tuesday. The U.S. sold nearly $23 billion worth of weapons between 1961 and 1971. The agency told Congress the Soviet Union came second, exporting $14.8 billion worth in the same period. WASHINGTON (Reuter) -

MLS Sales Soar Higher; Rate Reduced

By AL FORREST Times Business Editor

Greater Victoria real estate sales under the Multiple Listing Service soared to $4.8 million in January, more than double the $2.1 million in MLS sales in January, 1972. apartment vacancy rates in the Greater Victoria area vary from nil to 4 per cent.

Eric Charman, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, credits reduced MLS Board, credits reduced MLS commission rates for the great influx of business.

Commission on the first $20,000 of a sale under MLS has been reduced to 6.5 per cent from 7 per cent. Meanwhile, sales of exclusive listings carry an increased commission of 6 per cent, instead of 5.

Charman said narrowing of the gap was turning most ven-dors away from exclusive list-ings and he predicted that the practice of exclusive listings would become almost extinct in Victoria.

Air Charter Lines Target Of New Rule

WASHINGTON (CP) - The Civil Aeronautics Board of the United States brought down an order Wednesday effective ly removing a special privi-lege that had been granted 13 Canadian charter airlines Canadian charter airlines under Canadian government under Canadian government regulations.

The companies affected are: Pacific Western Airlines, Quebecair, Nordair, Wardair, Transair, Execaire Aviation, Transair, Execaire Aviation, Great Lakes Airlines, Great Northern Airways, Interna-tional Jet Air, Midwest Air-lines, Milladair, North Cana-da Airlines and Ontario Central Airlines. The CAB said the rule change, effective Feb. 16, is directed at Canada's "primary rights" policy that gives Canadian charter services the right of first refusal of a contract for which U.S. airlines might also compete. ADVANCE APPROVAL

The CAB said Canadian air-lines which win such con-tracts must obtain advance approval of the CAB for each flight.

The CAB said it acted to protect the rights of U.S. charter airlines for a fair op-portunity to compete for U.S.

Canada flight contracts, "rights denied by the current regulations of the Canadian government."

This will affect only a small fraction of the total air traffic between the two countries, said one Canadian close to the

Alberta Details All Oil Reserves

CALGARY (CP) The Alberta Energy Board today said the assessed value of petroleum rights held in 1972 has been estimated, under the province's new Mineral Taxation Act, at $6.4 billion.

No owner of crude oil rights shall be subject to tax if the aggregate assessed value of his petroleum rights is less than $5.000;

An appeal may be made to Board assessor M. R. Blackadar says the figure was reached in a simulation based on remaining recoverable re-serves of crude oil at the end of 1971. The $6.4 billion assessment, calculated after reduction by on e-sixth for crown-held rights, is intended to give an indication of how the reserves tax will be applied in 1973. The province has given pe-troleum operators the option of accepting a higher royalty structure or paying taxes on recoverable reserves on the basis of a mill rate. Companies have until July 31 to make the choice. The new resources revenue plan was effective Jan, 1 for taxa-tion purposes and is expected to yield the province an addi-tional $70 million in oil revenues this year. Blackadar says the total Blackadar says the total 1973 assessment will be somewhat different from the results of the 1972 simulation because of decreased remaining recoverable reserves and hanges in other factors. The board has detailed methods to be used in com-puting petroleum rights

The main points of the assessment plan are:

The unit of assessment is a tract, which is defined as the area of land described in a certificate of title or crown agreement;

Assessment will be based on the value of crude oil reserves recoverable from the tract in accordance with the act, regu-lations and assessment meth-

Assessed value is determined by summing the fair actual value of remaining recoverable reserves in each production entity or portion

A Record for Firings And the Worst Goalie

From a used notebook:

The reference here a while ago to the fact that perhaps Jack Kent Cooke and Charles O. Finley qualify as the modern-day champs when it comes to firing coaches brought an interesting query from a self-confessed "old-timer":

"What about Major Frederick McLaughlin, the one-time owner of the Chicago Black Hawks?" That was right on, for the good major undoubtedly holds the all-time record for National Hockey League firings. He went through 13 coaches in only 10 years with the Hawks in a vain attempt to get a winner by icing a team consisting almost solely of American players.

Polo was the major's game, but that didn't stop him from becoming an instant hockey expert as he kept the Hawks in the cellar for lo, those many seasons.

Whilst ferreting out the information on the major in that excellent book "Hockey", vintage 1969, another interesting yarn of a past era resurfaced.

Perhaps you've heard it. You have if you've heard of that famous NHL goaler, Steve Buzinski.

His name cropped up during the war years, and later, Lester Patrick often retold the story, embellishing it a little more each time. Why not? When the Rangers suddenly found themselves short of tal-ent because of the demands of the Canadian Army, the call-went out to all scouts: find us a goalie.

Finally, from the wild west, Lester was touted on one, Steve Buzinzki, as the logical replacement for the departed Sugar Jim Henry. And Buzinski, almost sight unseen by anybody from the NHL thus was recruited from the Swift Current Lester had never seen Buzinski close up, let alone in goal, and it was a great surprise to him when he did. Rather it was a shock. Buzinski figured he was the greatest, but wasn't; and before the season was half over, the Rangers were in last place, and Buzinski had a goals-against average of over eight

One night after the Detroit Red Wings had put the puck behind him 12 times, Lester, exasperated, asked him what hap-

Unperturbed, Buzinski said "stopping Detroit shots was just like picking cherries off a tree."
Significantly, Buzinski's exploits fall under the chapter headed: "The Worst Goalie".

Meanwhile, Alan Eagleson, has been quoted as saying that: "In the same circumstances, I'd act exactly the same way again. I'm convinced that had I adhered to all the diplomatic niceties, we would have fallen apart." For the uninformed this was in regard to Eagleson's peculiar behaviour in the Russia-Canada (Commenting on Playe Meaguesay's hockey series last fall . . . # Longer Schedule Sought by EFC

TORONTO (CP) — A bid by Eastern Football Conference clubs for a 16-game schedule is expected to be a big topic when the Canadian Football League executive committee meets today.

The increase is likely to be of the league's gate-equaliza-tion scheme which is an irri-tant to some EFC clubs, mainly Toronto Argonauts.

Ominous Ribbons of Oil Portent of Grim Future?

Midway through Johnstone Strait at Carcroft Island we saw the first ominous streak of oil. It was a long blue-grey ribbon just off the shore. In seconds our plane began to fly over many ribbons scattered along the main coast of Vancouver Island and on the east side of the strait.

As we passed over the mouth of Knight Inlet the real tragedy of the Irish Stardust oil spill became apparent. Several of the numerous islands large and small in this area showed signs of contamination. Each has numerous bays and coves and in many of these oil was already along the beaches. On the shelltered side of these islands long fingers of the oil were spread ing out into the strait.

As long thick triangular slick spread north into Weyton Pass as we flew over Hanson Island the last large island prior to Alert Bay. Oil surrounded the clustered Pearse Islands just south of Cormorant Island, then the two large slicks off Alert Bay came into view.

Along the south west side of the island a heavy thick smear of oil covering a number of miles in length and a mile or more in width smoothed the strait and clung to the shore. North of the island a long triangular slick extended from the shore with heavy fingers of oil five miles or more up the strait.

On a low pass, in an attempt to land we saw the heavy-black line far up on the beaches around the island. Heavy swells made a landing impossible so we circled the area swinging well over the estuary of the Nimpkish River. Heavy scum also covered the beaches at the entrance to the estuary leaving no doubt that what had occured was a major ecological disas-

David Anderson, Liberal leader and environmental cru-David Anderson, Liberal leader and environmental crusader, warned when the Vanleene ran aground at Berkley sound last spring that we were unprepared for another spill. After the Alert Bay oil spill he stated, "The Inside Passage must have depots ready for just such emergencies. These depots could be located at sites like Alert Bay, Campbell River, Nanaimo and Victoria. The whole idea is to prevent the oil from spreading. These depots would store absorbants like peat moss, straw and Slick-Licker machines. But we must also have log booms which can be airborne immediately to contain these spills."

Anderson made it very clear a year ago but neither the federal nor provincial governments were prepared, or appear to be preparing, for what seems to be the inevitable.

Like many others I deplore the inevitable.

Like many others I deplore the circumstances which have allowed the oil to spread throughout Johnstone Strait and well into Discovery Passage. The low grade fuel, bunker fuel-C, used by the Irish Stardust must be banned from future use in the inside passage.

I am also extremely concerned over the soft-pedalling, federal government spokesmen are giving to this spill. It is only a small spill they state, it will have little effect on waterfowl, or, don't be concerned we will have everything cleaned in sixty

What has occured is a disaster for the communities in the what has occured is a disaster for the communities in the area and for the people of this province who use this validable recreational fish and wildlife environment. The heavy gale winds will have smeared the muck high up on the beaches above the tidal line where it will take years to oxidize and disappear. The Joss of intertidal life along the coast and in each of the islands may well be astronomical. It is a tragedy that only the years will reveal?

NEW YORK (AP) - Monte Irvin, who "wasted my best years in the Negro leagues" prior to starring with New York Giants, was named Wednesday to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Their victory will probably be temporary.

In a B.C. Supreme Court sitting Wednesday Mr. Justice P. D. Seaton ruled that a North Cowlchan bylaw permitting Kingsview Properties Ltd. to build 1,500 units on 505 acres at the site was invalid.

He quashed the bylaw because a land-use contract presented at a public hearing Dec. 20 was incomplete.

Something Old But New

TORONTO (CP) — Girls may dress casually and informally in their everyday lives but they still tend to favor the traditional gown when it comes to their wedding day, manufacturers and retailers say

In the spring collection by A. Richman and Sons Ltd. of Toronto there are plenty of traditional gowns to choose from.

Airy fabrics such as lace, voile, tulle polyester organdy and jersey-like crepe are used in the collection. Many new wedding gowns come in clinging jersey-type fabrics and there are even a few peau de soie.

High necklines and crystal pleating are found in spring wedding dresses and there is often a touch of color in ribbons or trim.

For the traditional bride, there is the long organdy gown with Venetian lace bodice and trim along with a full-length veil.

She may prefer an organdy gown with square neckline filled in with dainty dotted tulle and lace trim with pink sating ribbons running through it. It is completed with a shoulder veil held in place by a tiny Juliet cap.

For the sophisticated bride, there is an elegant gown made of synthetic jersey featuring high neckline, long sleeves and a yoked back ending in the long traditional train. A turban finishes off this gown.

Big fluffy bridal bouquets are out. Spring brides will carry small bouquets or nosegays, even a single rose.

The notion dies hard, even though it is buried almost daily under new statistics which prove the precise opposite. A very large number of women work to put bread on the table, and others work to provide the margin of ma-terial well-being that makes life a bit more enjoyable.

A recent survey by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research shows just how many women are, in fact, "breadwinners." It discovered that 40 per cent of all working women are depen-dent on neither a husband nor a father for their support. About 32 per cent were the sole wage earners in their homes and another 8 per cent were the major, though not the sole, wage-earners.

MINER KILLED AT GRANDE CACHE

GRANDE CACHE (CP) — A 27-year-old miner was buried in a rockfall at the No. 2 coal mine Wednesday. His body was later recovered. He was identified as Joel Paul Officials of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. said the walls of one of the shafts under a mountain started to cave in along a 30-foot length. They said the miner might have been able to survive if he had managed to climb under the coal-digging machine that was buried in the rockfall. The cave-in occurred near the end of the shaft and no one else was trapped.

Some people are still under the impression that good sound should east a lot. It used to a few short years ago. Today. that's just not the case. But there are still a lot of salesmen around who work on the premise that good stereo is expensive because they've been told to sell as much as they can as fast as they can. That's what we call the "flip up." If you don't need a thousand dollar system (and you probably don't) we'll tell you so. We. won't flip you up but we may flip you down to what you really need. The "flip down" - just one of the reasons they call us "the Good Guys."

British Spy Chief Unmasked

LONDON (UPI) - The man-James Bond called M is really Sir John Ogilvie Rennie and that was until today one of the most official secrets in Britain.

Rennie, 59, a deputy foreign office undersecretary, was publicly named as the head of Britain's M16 overseas spy network.

The secret identity of the man usually called "M", agent 007's boss in the fictional Ian Fleming novels

Frost in the Topsoil Means Checking Roots

Frost in the topsoil again this week will loosen shallow rooting plants or those put into the garden towards the end of October or later.

Various Primulas come to mind, such as Juliae hybrids, the polyanthuses, auriculas, denticulatas and the lovely moisture-loying pulverulentas. These all bloom fairly early in the spring months, so need the attention of getting them back into the soil before the Have a pail of crumbled leafmould ready for this first aid work. The plants without root exposure can be settled with a gentle pressure around the plant and a handful of the leafmould around the collar.

Where plants are found with roots exposed, and you know they have shallow roots or were put in late, it will be best to lift them with a trowel and re-set. Use some of the leafmould in the hole and at the surface.

un the hole and at the surface.

Until late March it's a bit difficult to know how to assess wallflowers after the early winter hard freeze. The only way is to see they have their roots firmly anchored, for otherwise the buds will not open even though they form.

Wallflower fragrance is so richly haunting that you will recognize it again instantly even though you've not encountered it for 20 years or more. If you have none for this year, plan to grow a few plants this summer for flowering next

In the rock garden, it is well to go over all the smaller plants which were set during summer or fall. If they were pot grown specimens, the whole rootball may have been heaved from the soil by the action of frost on the wet soil.

After re-setting carefully, sand will help prevent further heaving since the moisture content will be less among the sand particles than in the soil.

If you find bulbs out of the soil, they must be replanted at once. Try to preserve the roots if they seem in fair condition, but remember that spring growth may be less than perfect from these bulbs. When their leaves are well formed, a weak feed of a belanced fertilizer will help them if your soil was from these bulbs. When their leaves are well formed, a weak feed of a balanced fertilizer will help them if your soil was not newly enriched last fall.

Don't be tempted to do any pruning away of apparent winter damage plants unless you are so well acquainted with them that you cannot be wrong in your estimation.

Most of us get pleasant surprises in spring by finding a plant putting out new shoots in April when we thought it a total loss at New Year's.

In the vegetable plot, early set garlic cloves and shallot bulbs may have come up to the surface. They won't do any good there, so patiently re-set them two inches down.

Checking your garden plants frequently is just a part of good gardening. You're sure to find something of interest every time.

A Remarkable Guide to Drug Use

There has come to my desk perhaps the most remarkable and informative book that I have seen on the subject of addictive drugs, entitled Licit and Illicit Drugs, by Edward Brecher and the editors of Consumers Report.

Brecher is a well-informed science writer, and the Con-sumers Union has for many years performed an important service by proving information about foods, drugs and all sorts of consumer products.

This present book was more than three years in preparation and is ideal for anyone who really wants to learn all about addis-

It was originally intended to be a handbook on illicit drugs, but as Brecher studied the writings of physicians, psychiatrists, sociologists and pharmacologists, he realized that much more For example, in order for young readers to take an interest, he felt that the licit drugs — caffeine, nicotine and alcohol, must be considered as well as opium, morphine, heroin, cocaine, LSD, marijuana, speed, amphetamines and barbiturates. Brecher also describes the drugs in their historical settings, telling when and how the various drugs were introduced in the United States, and he tells about the history of drug laws, policies and attitudes. For instance, we learn that the Unites States, during the 19th century, was a "dope fiend's paradise. Opium was on legal sale conveniently and at low prices throughout the century; legal sale conveniently and at low prices throughout the century; morphine came into common use during and after the Civil War; and heroin was marketed toward the end of the centry."

Although the use of oplates was considered immoral by some certicistates the contraction of the contraction of people — "a vice akin to dancing, smoking, theater-going, gambling or sexual promiscuity . . employees were not fired for addiction. Wives did not divorce their addicted husbands or husbands their addicted wives. Addicts continued to participate fully in life of the community. Addicted children and young people continued to go to school, Sunday School and college."

Breche points out that the people of the 19th century availed.

Brecher points out that the people of the 19th century avoided one of the most disastrous effects of our laws and attitudes regarding narcotics today — "the rise of a deviant addict subculture, cut off from respectable society and without a 'road back to responsibility."

This remarkable book is filled with information which will be tremendously helpful to parents, judges, community leaders, and young people who want information that they can trust about

A private industry proposal to build a $200 million coal pipeline from the East Koo-tenays to Roberts Bank drew a negative reaction today from Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The proposal, by Shelpac Research and Development Ltd. — established by Canadian Pacific and Shell Canada - calls for a mixture of water and powdered coal to be piped through a 490-mile pipeline from Sparwood in the Koo-tenays to the Roberts Bank coal port.

Williams said Shelpac has been approaching various re-gional districts between the Kootenays and Roberts Bank seeking approval in principle

Do-Nothing Attitude On 'Slums' Attacked

A tenant organizer told city officials today that Victoria has its share of slums and the city is not enforcing its own bylaws to raise standards.

And a politician wondered aloud about establishing a regular blacklist of substandard housing, to be sent to the municipalities each month.

tivists presented a slide show and panel discussion this morning for a dozen city officials and public housing extending that throughout the meeting that throughout Greater Victoria there are slum pockets with dwellings "truly unfit for human habitations".

Henrietta Pilon of the Greater Victoria Low Income Group showed pictures of the kind of housing poorer people can afford locally. It amounted to views of seriously-leak-ing oil tanks, peeling walls, dangerous makeshift elec-trical arrangements, squalid cooking and washing facilities, crumbling houses and "gardens" resembling garbage dumps.
